It is a Himalayan utopia, a permanently happy land, isolated from the world. In a New York Times interview in 1936, Hilton states that he used Tibetan mythology, which was published in French in 1850, went through many editions in many languages. The Flying Dutchman (Dutch: De Vliegende Hollander) is a legendary ghost ship that can never make port and is doomed to sail the oceans forever. The myth is likely to have originated from the 17th-century golden age of the Dutch East India Company (VOC). The oldest extant version has been dated to the late 18th century. .. In a 1976 episode of Land of the Lost, the Marshalls discover the captain of the Flying Dutchman. It is better to go to our villages than waste our time in this field. Their old homeland looking for a little shelter, now asked for a share of their land which they once left behind. He put what was lost will never be regained. The word bachpan is used in inverted commas, to denote the use of the Hindustani/Urdu version.
