Four provinces in an enchanted world, each with its own specific abilities, war for domination in a land ruled by the stones of power. Caleb Eaves is a high ranking officer of the Naturalist Region whose citizens have the power to communicate with all forms of nature. The green fist-sized stone lodged in his chest grants Caleb access to his powers, but the stone is taken from him, extracted from his upper body. The voices in his head that he once heard from all of nature have been silenced. No longer does he hear their cries. No longer can he communicate with his people. But worst of all...no longer can he hear the most intimate voice in his mind, the voice of his wife Anise. Near death and shivering with very little food and only a few layers of clothing, Caleb has endured seven months of imprisonment. He must find a way to escape, if he ever hopes to find his wife. But there is a menacing evil lurking. What Caleb discovers threatens to shake the very foundations of all four provinces. He must overcome his own darkness if light is ever to prevail.
